

Good Bowels Are An Aid to Growth

Growing Children Need a Mild Laxative to Foster Regular Bowel Movement.

As a child grows older it requires more and more personal attention from the mother, and as the functions of the bowels are of the utmost importance to health, great attention should be paid to them.

Diet is of great importance, and the mother should watch the effect of certain foods. A food will constipate one and not another, and so we have a healthy food like eggs causing biliousness to thousands, and a wholesome fruit like bananas constipating many. It is also to be considered that the child is growing, and great changes are taking place in the young man or young woman. The system has not yet settled itself to its later routine.

A very valuable remedy at this stage, and one which every growing boy and girl should be given often or occasionally, according to the individual circumstances, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a laxative and tonic combined, so mild that it is given to little babies, and yet equally effective in the most robust constitution. At the first sign of a tendency to constipation give a small dose of Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring, and prompt action will follow in the morning. It not only acts on the stomach and bowels but its tonic properties build up and strengthen the system generally, which is an opinion shared by Mr. John Dey of Bloomfield, N. J. He has a large family and at ages where the growth and development must be watched.

MARIE DEY

Little Marie has thrived especially well on Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mr. Dey considers it the right laxative for young and old and has found none better for young children.

The use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will teach you to avoid cathartics, salts and pills as they are too harsh for the majority and their effect is only temporary. Syrup Pepsin brings permanent results, and it can be conveniently obtained in any nearby drugist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 412 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

Allied Commercial Clubs to Cover Half of State

Forty Organizations Now Included in Eastern New Mexico Federation; Next Meeting Called to Discuss Branch Highway to Connect With Ocean-to-Ocean Route at Albuquerque.

A commercial federation embracing the entire east half of New Mexico, everything east of the Rio Grande as far north as Texas, is the plan of President B. D. Oldham and other officers and members of the Co-Operative Commercial Clubs of Eastern New Mexico and Western Texas, an organization now numbering forty business organizations in towns as far east as Amarillo, Texas.

Mr. Oldham, president of the First National bank of Clovis and president of the Clovis chamber of commerce, and one of the leading business forces of his section, is spending the week in Albuquerque. While here he has spent considerable time with Colonel Sellers, discussing plans for the construction of a new highway to connect with the Ocean-to-Ocean highway by a branch system of good roads.

"We must get in on this good road proposition," said Mr. Oldham at the Hotel Combs this morning. "Self it is a matter of time before the general secretary of our federation, who is in Clovis recently and we took up the matter of having a rally of the association to discuss the good roads matter. Mr. Oldham has been communicating with the various clubs and will soon call a meeting to take action on the highway plan. We desire to have just as good a system of good roads as at the best of the east and to that end plan to make use of all the present good roads to cut down the construction cost."

"There is now a good road from Amarillo to Clovis. The people at House, a small town this side, will cooperate to complete a good road to that point. From there we plan to take advantage of a fairly good road to Santa Rosa, where we shall probably come west into Albuquerque via Encino and Estancia. E. C. Dillon of Encino, who has done wonders toward promoting and securing good roads in the plateau section, pledges the help of the people in his part of the country to bring our highway through the Estancia valley. We must have the road; we need it. Albuquerque needs it, and we are certainly going to do our share. We need a Santa Rosa delegation recently at House and they promise to hold up the Santa Rosa end."

Mr. Oldham is enthusiastic about the possibilities of the commercial federation. "We expect to make the associated clubs one of the biggest development influences not only in the state but in the southwest," said he. "Forty towns in a pretty good start—but we expect in a short time to get every town east of the Rio Grande lined up with us."

Curry County Never Had Better Prospects.

"Curry county is in better shape than it ever was," said the banker. "It has gained this year rather comfortably; practically every farmer has a few cows; the dairying industry is on its feet and growing fast and the farmers in the Clovis district are all putting up silos. We tried a new scheme for boosting this silo business and it worked like a charm. The chamber of commerce offered $200, split up into eight prizes of $25 each for the first eight men to put up silos in a specified period. The $200 resulted in about twenty-two silos, if I remember correctly. But the need of the silo and the money-saving and money-making possibilities are now so well recognized that the farmers don't need much outside inducement."

HOW TO KNOW YOUR PROFITS TOLD IN BOOKLET

Well Known Expert Accountant Publishes Handy-Tables Which Prove Invaluable to Retailers.

"How to Know Your Profits" is the title of a neatly gotten up leatherette-bound booklet by John Herkenhoff, just off the Alhambra and Arizona press in this city. This booklet contains a series of ingenious tables enabling the retail merchant to tell of a single glance what figure will give him a certain percentage of profit, over and above the cost of doing business. Mr. Herkenhoff, who is now bookkeeper for the wholesale firm of L. B. Putney and company, was for years chief accountant for Morgan and Wright, the big rubber company, and is one of the ablest accountants in the country. He has resided in Albuquerque for three years.

In addition to the tables, the brochure contains chapters on facts for the proprietor, why so many fail, insurance, credits, method of determining costs to do business, how to mark goods so as to know your profit, weights and measures, pounds in a bushel, short cuts in figuring discounts, aliquot parts of 100 and prices by the gross, what Retailer's Selection, discounts and short cuts in discounts, with some valuable pointers on law. Retailers who have examined the booklet say it supplies a long-felt and pressing want in the retail business.

PHILIPS-RODGE CO. GIVES EVERY AID TO THE SUFFERING

Albuquerque Man Declares That Owners of Wrecked Mine at Dawson Could Not Have Been More Liberal.

WHOLE CAMP UNITES IN DESPERATE RELIEF WORK

Warren Graham, of the firm of Graham Brothers of Albuquerque, returned home last night from Dawson, N. M., where he hurried on receiving news of the disaster in Stag Canyon mine No. 2 of the Dawson Fuel company. Mr. Graham and his brother have several relatives employed at Dawson and they feared for a time that some of them might have been among the awful total of the death list. Fortunately, none of them were employed in the No. 2 mine.

"It is the most horrible mine disaster I have ever known of," said Mr. Graham this morning. "It is impossible for me to describe the conditions to you; the suffering women and the whole broken-hearted people of what is, believe, the most thoroughly equipped coal camp in the west, if not in the world."

"No one knows what caused the disaster. There have been all kinds of speculations and theories from scientific men and government experts, but the seasoned coal mine men who have been on the ground do not know how it happened and say so. The mine was thoroughly equipped with safety appliances and to my personal knowledge the ventilation was as nearly perfect as it could be made."

"When I left Dawson yesterday 230 bodies had been taken from the mine. I believe the official record showed that some 32 remained to be removed. The mine is a complete wreck, and the remaining bodies are so buried under the debris that it may be days before all are recovered. The mine, of course, will be reopened as it is one of the most valuable of the Dawson veins; but it is going to require much time to close it. All fires have been checked and no further danger from this cause is anticipated."

PHILIPS-RODGE COMPANY

REFUSES ALL ASSISTANCE

"I want to pass over all the horrors of this accident and to forget the harrowing scenes I witnessed at Dawson; but I do want to say that if ever an organization did everything possible for the relief of the sufferers, it was the Philips-Rodge company. The owners of the wrecked mine, General Manager O'Brien, proud of his model mine camp, as were all its officials, heartbroken by the accident, and without sleep for nearly three days, was everywhere with calm, cool judgment, doing the work to be done. Rev. Harvey M. Schiele, the minister of the camp, also without sleep for days, seemed to be going to the relief and comfort of every weeping woman. Dr. James Douglas and his team, the head of the company, reached the scene on the first special that could get through."

Women, wives of the officers, who probably never had their hands in dish water before in all their lives, rolled up their sleeves and went right in to the two big boarding houses with the wives and daughters of the miners, to furnish food to the rescue workers and to the large number of people who flocked to the camp, either through interest in relatives, or for purposes of investigation. It was a splendid exhibition of human kindness. I do not believe there was a single act of selfishness in all the group work."

"And on top of this the Philips-Rodge company, having refused aid from the Red Cross, the state of New Mexico, and many other sources of money, announced that they would care for their own, and stated that every widow would be paid $1,000, every child $500, and furnished with free transportation and Pullman fare or steamship accommodation to any part of the world."

"The company, it seems to me, from a careful study of the situation, has not only been generous, but sufficient in its treatment of those bereaved by the explosion, for although every expert and miner who has examined the mine is unable to furnish a definite reason for the explosion, all agree that the company, in addition to maintaining a model camp in every way, had done everything known to modern science to safeguard the men who worked underground."

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back Its Color and Luster with Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyn's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyn's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally and so gently. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrous and you appear years younger.

INDIAN HEIRSHIP CASE DECISION IS IMPORTANT

Outcome of Grace Cox Case Gives Secretary of Interior Full Power to Determine Status of Claimants.

After an extended hearing before Commissioner of Indian Affairs Cato Sells, his decision recently rendered in what is known as the Grace Cox inheritance case was approved by the secretary of the interior, and thereby the department has indicated a policy which will hereafter govern in the disposition of all Indian heirship matters and administration of restricted estates.

The effect of the decision is to confer upon the secretary of the interior full power to determine the personal or domestic status of claimants as heirs of deceased Indian allottees, and where the intent of a legal action had been in violation of the spirit of congressional enactments or in derogation of Indian rights, to make a finding consonant with equity.

In the act of June 25, 1910, and the amendatory act of February 14, 1913, congress settled the confusing question of probate jurisdiction in Indian trust estates by directing the secretary of the interior, upon notice and hearing of such rules as he might prescribe, to determine the legal heirs of deceased allottees, and his action was given the force of a final court decree by the declaration that "his decision thereon shall be final and conclusive." Thereupon the federal courts dismissed as outside their jurisdiction all pending trust inheritance suits.

The Grace Cox case involved lands on the Omaha reservation at over twenty thousand dollars. The contestants were the nearest of kin of the decedent and an Indian who claimed as the decedent's legally adopted daughter. The adoption decree issued in the county court of Thurston county, Nebraska, in 1902, was upheld in the same court in administration proceedings on two of the allotments involved, and was again upheld on appeal to the district court. It then went to the supreme court of the state, where it was dismissed on motion of the appellant, and was afterwards sustained by a former secretary. Irregularities in procedure and circumstances suggestive of imposition on the allottee led to a thorough review on rehearing of all matter appearing in the court's record of procedure and evidence in connection with the hearing before Commissioner Sells, and his finding was that there were no considerations of justice to be served by the adoption or by recognizing the relationship conferred in the decree, and the status of the adopted child alleged by the claimant was accordingly rejected and the estate was awarded to the decedent's blood related heirs, thereby reversing former decisions of the state courts and the department of the interior.

This decision terminates litigation requiring a period of more than ten years.
